

Notice of Sale

19 July 2004

The following four IOP journals have been acquired by Taylor & Francis plc with effect from 30 December 2004.

- Waves in Random Media
- Network: Computation in Neural Systems
- Combustion Theory and Modelling
- Journal of Turbulence

IOP will continue to publish the journals during 2004 and fulfill all remaining content. Taylor and Francis will assume responsibility for publishing the journals from 2005.

Taylor & Francis will contact all subscribers in due course with 2005 subscription information and how to access future content of the electronic version of the journals. New customers for 2005 subscriptions should contact Taylor & Francis at the address below. IOP customers (including consortia, permanent access and electronic archive), who have existing rights to permanent access will retain those rights and be fulfilled by IOP.

Taylor & Francis is one of the world's leading knowledge providers, publishing over 1,000 research journals across the sciences, social sciences, arts and humanities. They are ideally positioned to build on the success of these journals and the high standards of all these journals will continue under Taylor & Francis.

IOP is proud of creating these journals and association with the scientific communities represented by the journals. Following a strategic review of publishing focus, IOP concluded that Taylor & Francis have the resources to better realize the potential of these titles. If you have any questions about this matter for IOP, please contact custserv@iop.org.
